Steel Strike at A Glance

YOUNGSTOWN—Center of the vast steel strike crisis shifted today to Youngstown, following an eight-hour battle between strikers and police in which two were killed and 41 known wounded. Tension heightened as truck drivers went out on a sympathy strike, bringing fears of a general strike.

JOHNSTOWN—Bethlehem strike-bound plant closed, state police in charge of city following declaration of martial law.

WASHINGTON—Declaring "The mails shall go through," by partisan blocs of the Senate, the committee moved to compel forced delivery of the mail on all occasions.

CLEVELAND—Federal Mediation Board prepares to meet with steel companies' executives and CIO leaders in separate conferences.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 21—Dismissing all questioners with a terse, "I have nothing to say," John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, arrived here at 8 a. m. today from Washington.

He went directly to the hotel where the Federal Steel Strike Mediation Board conference with a CIO delegation headed by Lewis was scheduled. Phillip Murray, head of CIO's steel workers' organizing committee, arrived earlier from Youngstown and awaited Lewis at the hotel.

Francis H. Allen Dies; Formerly Resided Here

Francis H. Allen, World War veteran, a former resident of Bristol, husband of Dorothy Kressler Allen, and son of John M. and Anna C. Allen, also former residents of Bristol, died at his home in Burlington, N. J., yesterday.

The deceased was a member of Scollly-Bozart Post, No. 1817, Veterans of Foreign Wars, of Burlington, N. J. He was connected with the 29th Division during the World War.

Allen served in France as motorcycle chauffeur for Colonel Tydings (now United States Senator) during the war.

In addition to his wife and parents, Mr. Allen leaves two children.

The funeral will be held on Wednesday at two p. m., from the late residence of the deceased, 506 Washington avenue, Burlington, N. J., with interment in Odd Fellows' Cemetery, Burlington. Friends may call Tuesday evening.

Send Two Men To Jail For Pan-Handling Here

Two colored men are each serving a 10-day sentence in the Bucks County jail after their arrest here Saturday night when caught pan-handling.

The men gave the names of Thomas Garner, Washington, D. C., and Harry Byrd, Philadelphia.

The men arrived in Bristol early Saturday evening and began making a systematic tour of Mill street asking for money. One visited a business place and after being refused left and was soon followed by his pal who visited the same place.

Officers Pollard and Vanzant went in search of the pair and Pollard caught up with them.

They were given a hearing before Justice of Peace James Guy.

AMERICAN INDUSTRY TO ATTACK UNKNOWN ATOM

Results of Attack May Revolutionize the Course of Civilization

DETAILS MADE KNOWN

By Raymond Wilcox
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

PITTSBURGH, June 18—(INS)—Presaging results which may ultimately revolutionize the course of civilization, American industry today is marshalling its vast resources for an attack upon Science's greatest unknown—the Atom.

For years scientists have dreamed of smashing the atom, that mysterious formation which has never been seen, but which is known to constitute 99 per cent of all the mass of the earth, planets, and stars.

Stories without number have been written for the edification of the layman, detailing the great power inherent in one atom, minute matter believed composed of electrically charged particles. The energy inherent in one glass of water, it has been said, is sufficient if loosed, to drive the Queen Mary across the ocean.

Up to the present, investigation into the mysteries of the atom have been conducted entirely by college laboratories or by a few small institutional groups. Now, for the first time, a great industrial combination will pour its powerful resources into a determined effort to solve the mysteries of science's greatest frontier.

Work will immediately be begun, it was announced by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, towards installing equipment and starting work on a project of disintegrating the atom, hoping to solve much of the mystery surrounding the structure of matter.

A special laboratory has already been set aside in Westinghouse's Research Laboratories at East Pittsburgh and new equipment to provide the highest possible controlled direct voltages for the work is in process of design.

For this revolutionary project an electrostatic generator capable of providing direct current potentials of 5,000,000 volts is now in process of design. Furthermore, it is hoped that after studying the effects developed

Miss Marion Riccio Is Wed To Peter Antonelli

Miss Marion Riccio, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pasquale Riccio, 423 Dorance street, and Peter Antonelli, son of John Antonelli, 515 Jefferson avenue, were united in marriage Sunday afternoon at three o'clock in St. Ann's Catholic Church, by the Rev. Marcelino Romagnolo, rector of the church. Miss Frances Tamburello was organist; and Miss Yolanda DiFelice sang.

The maid of honor was Miss Rose DiLisio, 323 Brook street, and the bridesmaid, Miss Elizabeth Riccio, 423 Dorance street, sister of the bride. The best man was Joseph Antonelli, 515 Jefferson avenue, brother of the groom; and the ring-bearer, John Sabatino, 423 Dorance street, nephew of the bride.

The bride wore a gown of white satin made on Princess lines, with high standing collar. The skirt ended with a train. Her slippers were white satin, and she wore a veil of tulle, madonna style with a beaded crown. Her arm bouquet was white roses.

The maid of honor was attractive in peach tone chiffon over aqua taffeta. The bodice was cut with V-shape neckline in front, and the sleeves were short and puffed. The skirt was redingote style. Her hat was an off-the-face model of peach tulle with white rose-bud trimming and shoulder-length veil; and her slippers were of the same tone. She carried an arm bouquet of roses blending with the tone of her dress. The bridesmaid was attired in a dress fashioned like that worn by the maid of honor, of aqua chiffon over peach taffeta. She wore aqua tulle hat with rose-bud trimming, slippers in aqua tone and carried an arm bouquet of tea roses.

The ring-bearer was dressed as a page boy in white satin trimmed with white maribou. His slippers and anklets were white.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents for the immediate relatives and a few friends. The couple left Sunday evening for New York where they will spend several days. They will reside at the home of the bride's parents.

DEDICATE 2 MEMORIALS AT GRACE P. E. CHURCH

Altar Cross Given by F. Schoenfeld in Memory of Parents and Sister

CONSECRATE ORGAN

HULMEVILLE, June 21—The 100th anniversary of the consecration of Grace Episcopal Church was observed yesterday morning, when at the service of morning prayer, two memorials were consecrated by the vicar, the Rev. Albert Fischer, Jr.

The pipe organ, purchased six years ago, and the debt on which was paid one year ago, was dedicated to the memory of Miss Marion Tilton. Miss Tilton, who resigned in 1928 as organist and choir director, had given 35 years of service in that capacity.

The second memorial was an altar cross, the gift of Francis Schoenfeld, and dedicated to the memory of his father, mother and sister, Otto, Mabel and Marguerite Schoenfeld.

In delivering the sermon of the morning, the vicar, the Rev. Fischer, told of the Diocesan Convention granting a seat in the convention to the church at Hulmeville, 169 years ago. The history of Grace Church was traced to post-Revolutionary period, it being mentioned that the Society of Friends was responsible for early religious work in the county. The need seen by Bishop White, first bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Pennsylvania, and the Rev. G. W. Ridgely, rector of St. James's Episcopal Church, Bristol, for a place of worship here, was mentioned, the latter raising sufficient funds to construct the edifice. "Eight hundred dollars was spent and the building was finished that year (1834). There were not sufficient funds to furnish."

Giagnacova-DeMoia Nuptial Ceremony is Conducted

The wedding of Miss Frances DeMoia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rocco DeMoia, 420 Logan street, and Dominick Giagnacova, son of Angelo Giagnacova, 310 Brook street, took place Saturday afternoon at three o'clock in St. Ann's Catholic Church, Pond and Dorance streets, with the Rev. Marcelino Romagnolo, rector of the church, officiating. Miss Frances Tamburello, Dorance street, organist, played the wedding march.

The bride was attended by Miss Daisy Ferrara, 921 Pear street, and the best man was Albert Plancante, Burlington, N. J.

The bride wore a dress of white satin fashioned on Princess lines. The high neckline was trimmed with a lace collar. The long sleeves were puffed at the shoulder. Her skirt was long and ended with a train. White satin sandals, a tulle veil with a crown of pearls, completed the costume, and calla lilies were carried.

The bridesmaid was garbed in peach chiffon over aqua crepe. The long skirt had a panel of blue accordion pleated chiffon, and the waistline was finished with a girdle of peach and blue chiffon. She wore an aqua shoulder length veil with a coronet of flowers, aqua tone slippers and carried a bouquet of roses blending with her gown.

A reception was held at the home of the bride for the immediate relatives and a few friends. The couple left Saturday evening for a few days' honeymoon trip. Mr. and Mrs. Giagnacova will reside at 340 New Brook street. The bride travelled in a navy blue net dress over blue print silk made with short sleeves and trimmed with buttons. Her hat was white felt and her slippers, gloves and hand-bag were of white.

To Defend Full Crew Law

Harrisburg, June 21—The Earle administration today marshalled its legal forces to defend its recently-enacted full-crew law, to be attacked again in Dauphin county court.

The court issued a temporary injunction shortly following Governor George H. Earle's signing the bill which provides for added man-power on trains of various lengths.

The law, one of the most controversial enacted by the 132nd Legislature, has been one of the Earle administration's "hot potatoes." The law was to be given another hearing today to determine whether the restraining order should be continued.

THREE BRISTOL WOMEN HURT IN AUTO CRASH

All Three Are Confined To St. Mary's Hospital As Result of Injuries

CAR CRASHED INTO POLE

Three Bristol young women were injured Sunday when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into an iron post on Frankford avenue, near Letterly street in Philadelphia. One of the young men accompanying them was also hurt and the four are confined in St. Mary's Hospital, Frankford.

Those injured: Vincent Burget, 24, 6612 Upland street, Philadelphia, driver of the car. Fractured skull.

Margaret McGee, 27, 704 Pine street, Bristol. Fractured ankle.

Gertrude McGee, 24, 704 Pine street, Bristol. Fracture of right arm.

Veronica Dugan, 28, 706 Corson street, Bristol. Bruises and contusions. The three young women along with Burget, Patrick Taggart, 24, 1262 S. 50th street, and Patrick McElroy, 29, 6962 Chester avenue, Philadelphia, left Bristol, to drive to Philadelphia to visit friends. The group arrived in Philadelphia but found their friends were not at home and were enroute home when the accident occurred.

Mrs. McGee, mother of two of the girls injured, stated today that the exact extent of the injuries of those hurt in the accident would not be definitely determined until after 24 hours, according to a statement at the hospital.

MAN AND WIFE BURNED AS BLAZE RAZES HOUSE

Oilstove Expodes and Sets Fire To Bungalow Along Wheatshaf Road

ESTIMATE LOSS AT $2500

WHEATSHEAF, June 21—A man and his wife were burned and their bungalow destroyed late Saturday when an oil stove exploded at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Burkholder, Wheatshaf Road, near the Bristol Pike.

Mrs. Burkholder was burned slightly about the face when the explosion occurred as she was preparing supper. Her husband's arm was burned while he attempted to move furniture from the house. A small child in an adjoining room was not endangered.

The loss was estimated at $2,500. The King Farms Company owned the house, with Burkholder as a tenant.

Tullytown firemen reached the scene, only to discover that they lacked sufficient hose to extend from the canal to the blazing property, a distance of about 1,000 feet. They called the Union and Capitol View Companies, Morrisville, and lines were coupled together to obtain a stream of water.

The blaze had gained marked headway, however. Neighbors attempted to carry furniture to safety but few articles could be removed. A drawer from a desk near the front entrance was saved, and with it valuable papers.

Catholic Daughters Have Communion and Breakfast

Catholic Daughters of America, Court Bristol, No. 1097, held its ninth annual communion breakfast Sunday. The Daughters attended eight o'clock Mass and received Holy Communion in a body. Mrs. Neil McVaine and Mrs. Joseph Foster served as ushers. The Rev. E. Paul Baird, chaplain for the Daughters, preached the sermon. The breakfast was served by caterers in the Knights of Columbus Home. The menu: fresh fruit cup, rolls and butter, chicken, browned new potatoes, fresh peas, assorted ice cream, cake and coffee.

Covers were laid for 70. The color scheme was purple and gold, the Court's colors. Favors were small vases holding pansies of purple and gold.

The toastmistress was Miss Julia McFadden, vice grand regent, who announced the following program: Welcome, Mrs. Andrew Moore, grand regent; solo, Mrs. Maurice Roche; remarks, Rev. E. Paul Baird; solo, Miss Cecelia Kelly; remarks, Mrs. Laura Molter, district deputy; reading, Miss Elizabeth Mulligan, junior president; address, Mrs. Anna McPhillips, grand regent, Court Isabella; solo, Miss Cecelia Kelly.

WEDDINGS OF INTEREST OCCUR DURING WEEK-END

Anthony Burton Weds in New York; Miss Clara Follin Bride of A. Barclay

2 OTHER CEREMONIES

A wedding of interest to Bristolians took place in New York City on Saturday at 12:30 o'clock when Miss Ruth Priestman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glyndon Priestman, became the bride of Anthony Burton, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Russell Burton, 502 Radcliffe street. The wedding was solemnized in St. Ansgarius Chapel, Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

Miss Florence Burton, 502 Radcliffe street, sister of the groom, was maid of honor; and Miss Sally Ann Priestman, Lisbon, N. J., and cousin of the bride, was flower girl. Serving the groom as best man was Sidney Priestman, New York City, brother of the bride. Four ushers were present.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in white French lace over mousseline-de-soi, fashioned on form-fitting lines, short sleeves and square cut neckline edged with lace. The bridal veil of tulle had a coronet of mousseline-de-soi. She wore long white gloves, white satin slippers, and carried white roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Burton was attractive in a gown of apple green taffeta, made jacket-effect, with short sleeves and long full skirt. A leghorn picture hat with black velvet streamers, yellow lace mitts, and slippers, completed her costume, and she carried African daisies. The little flower girl was charming in a white muslin dress fashioned Kate Greenaway style. The empire waist had a square cut neckline and short puffed sleeves and the full skirt was trimmed with tucks. Green ribbon encircled her waistline. She wore black slippers, a garland of flowers in her hair, and carried an old-fashioned bouquet of daisies and pink roses.

A reception was held on the roof garden of Butler Hall, 50 attending. Mr. and Mrs. Burton remained in New York over the week-end and will leave today for a motor trip to the New England States. The couple will reside at Butler Hall Apartments, New York, until Fall.

Mr. Burton, who was born in Tullytown, is sixth in line bearing the name of Anthony, which dates back as far as 1680. He is a graduate of Bristol High School; George School, Newtown; and Columbia University, where he received a B. S. degree, and is now studying for a master's degree. Mr. Burton is employed by the Employers' Liability Assurance Corporation, Ltd.

Astaire-Rogers Triumph In Film At The Grand

Singing, dancing and romancing their way more securely into the hearts of millions of theatre-goers, America's dancing favorites, Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, are co-starred once more in their gayest and most spectacular screen hit, "Shall We Dance," at the Grand Theatre. The film will continue tonight and Tuesday.

The stars, who hold undisputed rank as the most popular team on the screen, are said to break completely away from the type of characterizations they have given in the past and to offer a brand new kind of musical film. No longer portraying struggling aspirants for fame, both appear as "tops" in their respective fields, Astaire as a famous ballet dancer, Miss Rogers as an equally famous revue artist.

Brought together under unusual circumstances, they find the world insists on believing them married, which in turn compels them actually to get married in order to gain their freedom. On this unique theme the tuneful and colorful story is played against glittering backdrops of Paris and New York, and aboard a giant ocean liner.

The novelty that has always featured the stars' vehicles again characterizes the new offering, with eight brilliantly conceived dance numbers. Dances by the two terpsichorean luminaries and by Harriet Hooter, America's foremost ballerina, include remarkable solo novelties, ballet and modern dancing ensembles. These are presented in picturesque settings that range from a Parisian theatre to a New York roof garden and from a liner's sun-deck to the whirling machinery of its engine room, and they are hailed as the most enthralling that have as yet been filmed.

COURT OF HONOR IS HELD BY BOY SCOUTS AT EDGELY CHURCH

Bristol Pastor, is Speaker of Evening

AWARD MANY HONORS

Five Life Scouts Are Given
Much Coveted
Award

EDGELY, June 21—The Union Church was packed last evening with many people crowding the vestibule to participate in the Spring Southern Divisional Court of Honor of the Bucks County Scouting Council. The advancing Scouts and their leaders were addressed by the Rev. Norman L. Davidson of the Bristol Methodist Church taking the topic of "The Good Turn." With the story of the Good Samaritan, the Rev. Davidson led his listeners into a greater realization of the opportunities before them. It revealed the values of the Scouting ideal of "A Daily Good Turn."

Dr. A. J. Strathie, Newtown, president of the Bucks County Scouting Council, presented the Leaders' Training Certificates. Quoting from a national leader, he said, "A responsible citizenry will bring our country to a golden age of happiness." "Scouting is endeavoring to give training to make more effective the leadership of those directing our youth. Scouting universities and training camp week-ends offer many opportunities to the leader. The communities should be proud of the service you men are rendering. Every worthy citizen should appreciate what is being done by each and every leader present this evening."

Five Life Scouts were attained. This is one of the highest numbers at one Court of Honor. Those honored by the awarding of the "heart emblem" were Field Commissioner Robert G. Geiger, Andalusia; Walter Huber and Lawrence F. Newell, Jr., of Morrisville No. 1; Stanley Wendkos, Andalusia; and Robert Peter, of St. Francis Troop No. 2.

District Chairman Walter W. Pitzonka gave the citations. He said, "One more step and all of you will be Eagle Scouts. Try never to forget the meaning of being a Life Scout. It should always remind you that you are a Scout for life." Scout Executive William F. Livermore presented a Five Year Veteran badge to Seascout Charles A. Lehr, of the Ship "Wasp," Andalusia.

"The head of a university said that our country needs men who are leaders, and they must have character and intelligence," said District Vice-Chairman Paul V. Forster, during his awarding of the Star Scout badge to Wilson Stackhouse, Andalusia. He continued by saying, "One without the other cannot make headway. Scouting has always encouraged both." Field Commissioner Jesse Wendkos, Andalusia, gave the merit badges. It was his thought that each recipient had learned many things, and that their education would now be much broader. Some Scouts had discovered their life work through the variety of subjects available in the merit badge program.

Encouragement for further endeavor in Scouting to reach greater heights of knowledge was given by District Vice-Chairman William Lange, Sr., Andalusia, as he made the award of the First Class emblems. Former Scoutmaster Donald Swain, of Edgely, gave the Second Class emblems. The emblem represents "the smile of the Scout," and it was the hope of Mr. Swain that each Scout would always strive to be cheerful under any circumstances.

Lower Bucks merit badge awards were given to Field Commissioner Robert Geiger (bird study, civics, personal health, public health, safety, wood-carving, wood turning and wood work). Bristol No. 1, Charles Scheffey (scholarship, signaling and zoology), and Ralph Scheffey (zoology). Cornwells No. 1, Scoutmaster Benjamin H. Hughes, Jr., (automobile, pathfinding, physical development and scholarship), James Hutton (animal industry, automobiling, farm home and its planning, farm layout and building arrangement, pathfinding and poultry keeping), Alvin Marshall, Jr., (automobiling, civics and pathfinding), and Harold Turner (animal industry, automobiling, bird study, farm home and its planning, farm layout and building arrangement, pathfinding and poultry keeping). Andalusia No. 1, William Ludascher (leathercraft), Wilson Stackhouse (carpentry, firemanship, metalcraft and woodwork), and Stanley Wendkos (cooking, firemanship, first-aid, pioneering, safety, scholarship).

SAY, CAN YOU SEE?

Away back before the Civil War, magnifying glass makers used to be grateful to the newspapers for using type smaller than the human eye could follow for any sustained period of reading. Newspapers were smart enough to throw all type of the near-invisible variety out their respective windows two or three generations ago. There long has been a suspicion that the grandfathers of the publishers of present-day telephone books were waiting under the windows with large receptacles wherein to catch the type faces popular in the press during Franklin Pierce's Administration.

Judicial cognizance finally has been taken of this quaint historical and typographical phenomenon. Judge Robert J. Summers of Buffalo, N. Y., has written a letter to the New York Public Service Commission in behalf of the "million people over 50 years old in this state who are suffering from a declining capacity to see." Judge Summers admits that when a man gets over 50 he does not need a telephone book as much as one who is younger, but he believes that even persons over 50 "ought to have reasonable opportunity to look up our friends."

So the judge asks the P. S. C. to use its influence with the telephone company in behalf of more legible type. He sees little hope of results from the campaign for conservation of eyesight "unless some of the omnipresent sources of eyestrain are eliminated," and he knows of "none worse or more flagrant than that of the telephone book."

The Public Service Commission has responded promptly by requesting Judge Summers: "In the future when referring to this communication, will you please address your letter to File . . . XYZ . . . etc."

So you may say that Attention Has Been Called and Progress Is Reported.

COME BACK, GARNER!

In all his thirty-six years' service at Washington nothing like this has ever happened. Reference is made to the absence of Vice President John N. Garner from Washington while Congress is in session.

Reports are that Mr. Garner just had to go fishing. These have it that Mr. Garner left the capital city very reluctantly and that if it hadn't been for the fishing he wouldn't have left at all. Won't some reporter please interview his sister down in Detroit, Texas?

But, whatever the reason for his departure from the halls of Congress, we appeal to Mr. Garner to please return to Washington. He was never needed as he is needed now—no, not in thirty-six years.

It seems in Washington Congress, taking advantage of the Vice President's absence, is threatening to pass a bill making everyone work forty hours a week. Hearings are being held and various gentlemen are expressing themselves volubly to the effect that everyone should be compelled to work forty hours. We just want to ask one question, to wit: What would this do to the WPA?

Dash back to Washington, Garner, before Congress enslaves the populace.

A company of the Spanish soldiery counts off: "Uno! Zwei! Three! Quatre!"

Motto selected by a high school graduating class at Metz, Missouri: "WPA, here we come!"

HOWEVER

By Arthur Reid
Corporations Contribute
Workers' "Balance" Budget
The Farmer Was Paid

The Democratic National Committee owed about $300,000 early this year. Its statement for the three months ended May 31 shows the deficit has been cut to $216,000. Sales of 1936 campaign booklets at $250 apiece, each autographed by President Roosevelt, accounted for $165,000 of the debt.

Letters soliciting purchases were sent to corporations as well as to individuals. The corporations were assured they could buy legally. If one book could be bought legally, so could more. Corporations and individuals identified with corporations, whose interests in action by the Administration at this time are large, responded numerously and substantially.

Two brewing companies took $10,000 worth. As an individual, Walter Chrysler seemed to want 40 old campaign books at $250 apiece. Six unions bought $1,000 worth each.

Given away at the time, a last year's campaign book probably by now is the dearest thing in print. Add the President's autograph. Add the identification with the President himself and the committee's solicitation. How an idea was conveyed that value might be received in comparison with which $250-a-book would be a bagatelle is obvious.

These $165,000 of sales of old books (or was a special edition run off?) may not conflict with the bar in the Federal Corrupt Practices Act against corporations giving to political candidates or committees any "sum of money or anything of value." To average common sense, a conflict is obvious with the first principles either of decent or clean politics. The $165,000 was raised by the sort of practice to be expected of the Farley machine, while the Postmaster-General remains in the Cabinet and at the same time serves as chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Barring unforeseen favorable developments, the Federal budget can't be balanced in the fiscal year beginning July 1. Yet for the first time in six years the Treasury probably will be able to get along with no further borrowing of "new" money.

This, it is explained in Washington, is due to the expected receipt during the year of some $700,000,000 in social security taxes. Of course, the money from these taxes is destined nominally for deposit in the social security reserve fund. But, since there is no feasible way to invest it except in Federal bonds, it actually will become available for spending. The Treasury will deposit its bonds in the reserve fund and use the cash to meet current running expenses of the Government.

Thus, while the public debt will continue to increase, there will be no further need to add to that represented by bonds outstanding in private hands. The effect, in that respect, will be the same as if the budget actually were balanced, the danger of gutting the money market with Federal securities being averted.

This is a happy development, which serves, nevertheless, to illustrate one of the chief objections raised against the vast reserve fund contemplated by the present Social Security Act. With the semblance of a balanced budget thus pathetically achieved, a principal pressure favoring good fiscal management will have been relieved and politicians will be tempted to ignore the need for an adequate program of debt retirement. Should that result, some future emergency might find the Government with an overly large debt—even if one owed chiefly to social security beneficiaries—and with its credit imperiled.

Since Senator Vandenberg began checking up on the conservation program of the Department of Agriculture, his mails have been stuffed with letters complaining of irregularities in distributing Government checks to farmers. And Department of Agriculture explainers have been equally busy franking out publicity supposed to refute Vandenberg case by case.

Consider the case of the farmer in Odebolt, Ia., who contracted with the Department of Agriculture in 1934 not to raise 626 acres of corn. He used part of the land contracted to be kept out of production by sowing 167 acres of wheat.

It appears the Washington crop-control authorities were against raising wheat, too, at the time, so they cracked down on the farmer and docked him $2,040.20 from what he was to have got for not raising corn.

Then came the drought and there was a lot of talk throughout the country that it was silly to pay farmers thousands of dollars for not raising foodstuffs the country needed. So the Washington crop control experts repented and paid the farmer the $2,040.20, but whether it was for not raising the corn or was for raising the wheat in a drought year, has not been explained.

HULMEVILLE

The Methodist official board will conduct a business meeting in the parsonage, tomorrow evening, with the Rev. Robert H. Comly as host.

The presentation of "Rip Van Winkle" in the Longwood Open-Ar Theatre, Kennett Square, was enjoyed Saturday evening by Mrs. Walter Jackson, Mrs. C. Wesley Haefner; the Misses Myrtle Egly, Mary Thompson, Marie Hanson, Adeline E. Reetz, Grace H. Hilck and Elma E. Haefner.

Miss Frances Comly, a member of the faculty of Lancaster public schools, arrived at the home of her parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Robert H. Comly, Saturday, where she is passing her summer vacation.

A new Ford sedan has been purchased by Harold H. Haefner.

The Peppy Pals will be guests to-morrow evening of Miss Mary Thompson.

nish the church, and pews were kegs and planks," the Rev. Fischer informed. The use of the edifice as a hospital during the plague of cholera was told of.

The imprint of the character of the rectors who have come and gone in service of Grace Church was mentioned. "The church was organized for missionary purposes, and the church was quick to reveal the temperament of its people." After reviewing the hardships through which the church had passed, the minister stated: "There are more people in this church membership today than ever before." He then paid tribute to the work of a recent vicar, the Rev. James

"The cause of the creation of this church is still the motivating force behind it today. It was created to create Christians," said the vicar. "We want to make religion an active influence in the lives of men seven days in the week." In regard to the Sabbath day, he said: "Sunday is set aside for men to come to church and refresh themselves spiritually. Grace Church offers an opportunity for men, women and children to come to worship and experience the presence of Christ."

Among the desires of the churches mentioned, were: To be a friend to the friendless, a light to the lost, a hope for the hopeless. "We must put our whole lives into an exhibition of what Grace Church means to us. Let us consecrate our lives anew. . . . Let us make our religion joyful, making others see there is no greater joy than to be in God's house."

The Langhorne Choral Society aided in the special musical numbers.

The other services in commemoration of the 100th anniversary year of Grace Church were announced by the Rev. Fischer. Those within the next week are: Wednesday evening, address by Dean Charles Eder of the Convocation of Germantown, and music by Howard Gamble and his male chorus; Sunday, June 27th, corporate communion for all members, at eight and 11 a. m.

CHAPTER XXXXI

Rose left the room almost blind with rage. Walking out of the building she did not hear Sally's hail nor look up until that young lady tooted her horn vigorously. "Hey," she called. "Rose, what's the matter . . . deaf?"

Rose looked up and shook her head. She was so angry that she forgot she liked Sally. Sally was a Sutton, that was enough for her. Sally said, "Get in here. You look as if you were going to have a stroke or something. Father can find his way home alone. For heaven's sake, Rose, don't stand there looking as if you were going out to the Crusades!"

People were passing and eyeing them curiously. Rose wrenched the door open and got in. Sally shifted gears. "What's up?" she asked softly.

Rose told her. She could not have helped telling her. Words poured from her. She said finally, "Well, I've a week to get my witnesses together and I haven't any! What mother will say—" she put her hands to her temples—"I'll have to tell her," she said dully.

"I suppose so," Sally was silent. Then she swore. She swore very fluently and Rose said, after a while, "Thanks a lot. I didn't know all the words. But I feel better."

"They won't put it over," said Sally, "not if it's my last official act. Let's go to your house and go into a huddle."

Rose put her hand over Sally's as it lay on the wheel. "Thanks," she said again.

On the steps of the house she found the afternoon paper. Sam's weekly. It was Sally who picked it up and looked at the headlines. "For the love of mud!" she cried excitedly following Rose in. "Look at this!"

Rose looked at it indifferently. She said, "Yes, I know. Jon told me. Sam is printing Jon's version of the accident. And Mrs. Enders is going to sue. Fred's her lawyer."

"Don't you see," Sally stormed, exasperated, "what this does? It tears things. Too bad the Board didn't wait till this came out. For at the Board meeting our precious Larry admitted he'd been drinking. Now he can't go back on it in court. They'll crawl. You watch. Don't let 'em! That was your story and so let 'em! Stick to it. Trying to railroad, are they? Well, they've made a swell case for the Enders. Sit tight. Don't let 'em squirm out of it. And keep your chin up." She kissed Rose. "I've work to do," she said, "and as for you, you get Jon around here quick. You need a doctor—your doctor."

"Where are you going?" asked Rose.

"I'm going to see Sam Patten," Sally answered.

Rose sat quite still after Sally had left. Her mother was out. Rose dreaded her arrival. She phoned Jonathan but he was at the hospital. She went upstairs to her room and changed her clothes. As she came down again the bell rang. She went to the door and found Martin there, looking doily at her.

"May I come in?"

"Of course."

In the hall he said, "I won't take a minute of your time. You understand how much I regret the Board's action. I—we talked, after you had gone. We—we wish to spare you as much as possible. This business of drinking with a student will be dropped. . . . In fact the whole matter will be dropped if you agree to—"

Rose interrupted with "I agree to nothing. I will bring my witnesses before the Board next week, Mr. Martin. In the meantime I am suspended, pending the inquiry. I understand perfectly. And you can go back and tell Senator Sutton that I am not resigning. I'm fighting."

"But the charges will be—" "No," said Rose, "they won't be. I'll answer them all at the proper time. Good afternoon."

And he was out on the front steps, mopping his brow despite the low mercury in the porch thermometer before he knew what had happened to him.

Mrs. Ward came in almost simultaneously with Jonathan, but Jonathan had a word alone with Rose, first. "I've been seeing Sam again . . . and I saw Sally. Keep a stiff upper lip . . . and we'll make it as easy for your mother as we can."

It wasn't necessary, Rose thought, to tell her mother everything. She needed to know no more than the fact that Rose had brought certain charges against Larry Dexter and that because of these she had been suspended pending an inquiry, and she had been offered the alternative of a resignation, and refused.

Mrs. Ward was astonishingly calm. She said, "You were right. You haven't done anything you shouldn't and Satan himself, let alone his right hand, Sutton, can't make you." If she went away after to have a quiet little cry no one knew it. Now she said something tremulously about a cup of coffee—her antidote against any poison, her particular brand of Dutch courage.

"I'm afraid I'm in for it," remarked Rose to Jonathan. Her mouth shook and her eyes brimmed. He took her in his arms. He said, "We'll both be in for it then . . . together." "Sally tell you everything?" "Yes. She told Sam too. I stopped at his office, and she came in. That dirty little—let's not waste words on him. But we have the Enders case in the bag."

The local papers carried an item concerning Rose's suspension from duty and Sam broke all precedent by getting out an extra. He did not of course itemize the charges against Rose. He merely gave her record and appealed to the student body for fair play for one of their most popular teachers. He did more than that. He had several earnest young men and women do a little handpicked calling on certain students who by reason of local standing, scholastic or athletic ability, were important in the school.

The result of this strategy was that, except for the handful which constituted Larry's following, the students body stuck. They picketed the Sutton house and the Dexter house and the Rogers house and the Martin house. They had a marvellous time. They got into dust-ups with the police and came off victorious. You couldn't arrest several hundred students, the jail wouldn't contain them. Most of them had won their parents to their way of thinking and when Sam called a sort of unofficial meeting in the armory of Ward sympathizers, most of the town turned out and listened to his impassioned speech. Rose had become a Cause. She had become a lever by which a free citizenry could rid itself of Dictatorship.

"Talk about Europe," yelled Sam, "why, my friends, Europe isn't in it!" He launched into a diatribe against the "Sutton-controlled interests, our schools, our police, our press—saving my own presence," and the people, led by the students, cheered and clapped.

Rose wasn't at the meeting. She was home, with Jonathan. When Sam brought her word of the success of his assembly she said, "I'm sort of scared."

"No," corrected Sam, "you aren't. Is she, Kim?"

"You're—pretty swell," said Rose. "Me or Kim?"

"Both of you."

"Look here, it isn't all you," explained Sam earnestly. "Such as I love you. You understand that. But I've been looking for a bone. I want to pick it. With our dear ex-Senator. You're it!"

"A very nice little bone," Jonathan told her.

"Bill Lynd's coming around presently, and Fred Bates. We're going to have a pow-wow," said Sam comfortably. "Oh, yes, and Sally."

"Sally?" "She's ours," said Sam, "and what a girl she is. If I weren't a bridegroom . . . and if she weren't a Dexter. Oh, well, perhaps it's as well. I couldn't do battle in public with a father-in-law."

All efforts to reach Miss Ward for the rest of the week were unavailing. Miss Ward was out of town learned those who telephoned. No, they didn't know where she was. She was as a matter of fact twenty miles away on a farm with a cousin of her mother's. Jonathan managed to see her. Sally came out and now then Bill drove out with Sam or Fred. Things were progressing nicely they reported. Their various sleuths had informed them that the Board deeply regretted its haste. It had better regret it, with Mrs. Enders as Jack's legal guardian suing Larry Dexter's father for one hundred thousand dollars.

Sam was having the time of his life. He was getting out an extra almost every day. And these were devoted to an entirely different version of the heroic rescue on the river during the previous summer. Still keeping well within the law, under Fred's guidance, Sam managed to convey to the general public the idea that young Mr. Dexter was not quite the hero he had been cracked up to be.

When the day appointed for the Board meeting came around, Rose appeared duly. The Board was uneasy. It sat on needles and pins. It was inclined to make a routine matter of this business. Having gone so far, it could do nothing further as Rose had refused all its advances but reinstate her, fully exonerated, or dismiss her . . . it was patent that she would not hand in her resignation. They did not like either idea, especially with the student picketing the school at this very minute and staging impromptu demonstrations. The students were having a marvellous time and a grand vacation.

American Industry To Attack Unknown Atom

by the application of 5,000,000 volts to go beyond that peak.

The "atom smashing" equipment will be housed in a huge pear-shaped tank 30 feet in diameter and 47 feet high now under construction at the Westinghouse research laboratories. The tank will contain compressed air of 150 pounds to the square inch providing an additional insulation for the 5,000,000 volt electrostatic generator which will accelerate the passage of streams of ions down a vacuum tube located in the center of the giant mechanism. At either side of the vacuum tube will be fabric belts which will generate direct current voltage.

When the generator is ready for experimentation, the 5,000,000 volts of electricity will be directed at a substance such as steel, placed at the mouth of the atom smasher. At it will be directed atomic particles, ionized particles of gas, all positively charged. When the atomic contents have been split the resultant substance will be tested to determine what happened in the bombardment.

Nearly every aspect of this new research program involves scientific adventure. The atom smashing equipment able to sustain the high voltages sought is not yet completely established. Also, air pressures to be attained in certain of the units will be almost to the ultimate now deemed safe in such large vessels and the degree of vacuums in long tubes which the research scientists will seek to attain is also something that must be determined by experiment.

The generation of such extremely high voltage as is being sought for experimentation is the first step into the unknown. Very little is known about such direct voltages due to the fact almost all previous research has been in the field of alternating current high voltage. The attaining of such steady voltages, of 5,000,000 and above, will enable the research engineers to secure fundamental information in this relatively unexplored field.

Another of the problems faced by the engineers is the development of a vacuum tube, in which the atomic bombardment will take place, to withstand voltages in excess of 5,000,000. By process of experimentation in the course of their study Westinghouse scientists are confident they will develop such a tube.

The ultimate result of the project cannot be foreseen and it is not possible to predict what practical applications may result from the fundamental knowledge gained, said Dr. L. W. Chubb, director of the Westinghouse Research Laboratories.

It is the possibilities inherent in such research that are responsible for the decision of Westinghouse to embark in this new field, he explained.

As an historic example he pointed to the development of the radio industry, a billion dollar business which has radically affected the everyday life of civilization. It was only when science discovered how to control electrons that this great industry became possible.

The entire electrical industry, he pointed out, has been built step by step by various similar discoveries after which engineers learned how to control and put such forces to work.

Discoveries in the new field of nuclear research go back only a few years. The neutron, artificial radioactivity, heavy hydrogen and the post-ive electron have been discovered since 1931.

These triumphs, to scientists, have only indicated the fact that there is hidden in nuclear research other nuggets of pure scientific gold waiting to be mined if the way can be found to their hiding places.

160-LB CHAMPION TO BOX AT ST. ANN'S TONIGHT

The Middle Atlantic A. A. U. 160 lb. champion will appear here tonight in the weekly amateur boxing show conducted by the St. Ann's Athletic Association in its arena, Wood and Franklin streets. Twelve bouts have been booked and all are rated as first-class bouts.

The champion, Herman Gowdy, won his crown in the Philadelphia Inquirer tournament and represented this district in the A. A. U. championship bouts in New York. He later went to Chicago. His foe for tonight will be Willie Collins, Sigma Theta. Collins hits equally as hard as Gowdy and this bout should be interesting from the start.

Vince Della, who holds victories over Happy Riddle and Benny Arizai, will have his hands full with Herbie White, former Middle Atlantic 126 lb. champion. White was eliminated in the semi-finals of the late tournament but not until after he had eliminated Tally Sciarra, St. Ann's. Della must keep stepping the entire three rounds if he intends to score over White.

The three-bout winning streak of "Hokey" Leighton, Rescue Squad, will be seriously threatened when he hooks up with Joe Marchione, Penmar. The latter has quite a number of bouts under his belt and is an experienced amateur, having fought for several seasons. His experience will count heavily in the match and he is depending on this to carry him to victory over the Crocydon youth.

Joe Ferrara, local 118 pound fighter, who won a decision in Willow Grove, Friday night, will try for his third straight when he faces Joe Parrante, Penmar. Both of these boys are considered novices and are evenly matched. Ferrara may have the reach on Parrante but the Philadelphia boy is a harder hitter and is most likely to have the St. Ann's boy on the floor before the bout is over.

Another St. Ann's fighter, Sammy Sindora, has changed his foe. Sindora was supposed to have fought Mike DeStefano, Pen Mar but a change brings Tommy Livingston, Pen Mar, here. Livingston is a tougher opponent than DeStefano and will give the St. Ann's warrior plenty of action as he is the type of fighter who keeps swinging the entire three sessions.

Although it is not definite as yet, there is a possibility that Junes Zeffries, St. Ann's, may attempt a comeback tonight. Zeffries has laid off for two seasons and before quitting set up a wonderful record. He has trained hard recently and Friday night made his first start and fatted Harry Davis, Sigma Theta in the second round at Willow Grove.

Match-maker Sammy Moffo has rematched many of the bouts that were on last week's popular show as far as it went before rain interfered and assures the fans that they will be treated to a real classic tonight.

The first bout will begin at eight-thirty o'clock sharp.

Mauri Rose Captures Race Laurels at Langhorne

SOUTH LANGHORNE, June 21—Mauri Rose, 1936 champion of America's speedways, captured the 50-mile Mid-Summer Sweepstakes at the Langhorne race track Saturday afternoon before a crowd of 15,000 spectators.

Billy Winn led the field for the first 46 laps, shaking challenges by Bud Henderson and Frank Beeder. But the little Detroit ace, who has yet to win at Langhorne, didn't have enough left in his Miller to cope with the terrific closing bid by Rose.

So the Columbus, Ohio, Jewish star, Rose, took over control in the last four laps and won in the time of 33 minutes, 6.42 seconds, a new record for the distance at Langhorne.

The summaries:
Over quarter-mile and their times: Mauri Rose, Columbus, Ohio, 37.92; Milt Marion, St. Albans, N. Y., 40.21; Len Perry, Lakewood, Cal., 38.53; Len Perry, Madison, N. J., 38.81; Eddie Staneck, Caldwell, N. J., 39.03; Albert Cusick, Brookline, Mass., 41.84; Frank Miller, Silver Springs, Md., 38.91; Frank Reynolds, Philadelphia, 39.59; Howey Cox, Dallas, 38.11; Duke Nolan, Laureldale, Pa., 39.99; Tommy Hinnert, Chicago, 41.47; Henry Durran, Newark, 40.55; Ted Horn, Los Angeles, 40.32; Wild Bill Holmes, Brooklyn, 39.31, and Bob Sall, Paterson, N. J., 37.93.

First 10-mile Race: Won by Ben Shaw, Westville, second, Billy Winn, Detroit; third, Gus Zarka, Doylestown, Pa.; fourth, Mauri Rose, Columbus. Time, 6 minutes, 11.89 seconds.

Second 10-mile Race: Won by Ora Bean, Long Beach, Cal.; second, Bud Henderson, Akron, Ohio; third, Tommy Hinnert, Laureldale, Pa.; fourth, Billy Devore, Indianapolis. Time: 6:16.67.
Third 10-mile Race: Won by Duke Nolan, Chicago, second, Jack Brown, New York; third, Howey Cox, Dallas; fourth, Frank Wearne, Reading, Pa. Time: 6:20.62.
Fourth 10-mile Race: Won by Tony Williams, Milwaukee; second, Len Perry, Madison, N. J.; third, Johnny Duncan, Long Island; fourth, Eddie Staneck, Caldwell, N. J. Time: 6:23.47.
50-mile Feature: Won by Rose; second, Winn; third, Shaw; fourth, Henderson; fifth, Hinnert. Time: 33:6.42 (new track record).

LEGION JR. NINE WINS OVER LAGHORNE, 3 TO 2

By "Chart" Tomlinson

In what proved to be an exciting ball game throughout the whole nine innings, the Bristol American Legion defeated the league leading Langhorne club by the score of 3-2. Before the first inning was fully over an interruption caused a short delay when the movie cameramen of "It Happened in Bristol" took pictures of both teams lined up, and one of Harry Bauroth running to first base.

Tonight the boys will travel to Newtown and play that team; Tuesday they will play McCall; Wednesday they play Perkasee for first place; Thursday or Friday they will play Newtown again and on Saturday they will travel to Doylestown. All the games but tonight's game with Newtown and Saturday's game with Doylestown are to be played on Landreth's field.

LANDRETH SEEDS NOSE OUT BURLINGTON NINE

In a game featured by spectacular fielding, the Landreth Seeds nine barely nosed out Burlington A. A. yesterday afternoon on the Landreth diamond as the two clubs renewed their old-time feud. Final score stood: Landreth's 4; Burlington 3.

Both clubs hit the pill hard during the afternoon but superb fielding came to the rescue of both twirlers. "Howie" Black who took the peak for the winners was touched for ten hits. The Landrethmen collected eleven off the delivery of "Lou" Huppe. Players who made fine catches during the afternoon were "Eddie" Liberatore, "Eddie" DeBoskey, Turner Ashby, and "Bill" Broadbent.

of London, England, with offices in New York City. Mrs. Burton is a graduate of the University of Southern California and Columbia University, and is employed at the New York City free library, Fifth Avenue.

St. John's Episcopal Church, Germantown, was the scene of a wedding Saturday afternoon, when Miss Grace P. Dickinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Dickinson, Pittsburgh, became the bride of J. Harold Connor, Flemington, N. J. The ceremony took place at 2:30 o'clock, in the presence of many relatives and friends, and the Rev. Sidney Goodman officiated. As the bridal party entered the church, the organist played Lohengrin's Wedding March.

Miss Marjorie Fagan, 1322 Pond street, a cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. Miss Lucille Wallower, Harrisburg, and Miss Olive Wilhelm, Pittsburgh, were bridesmaids. Serving the groom as best man was Edgar Zeger, Mercersburg, and the ushers were Dr. Benjamin F. Dickinson, Philadelphia, and Scott R. Dickinson, Pittsburgh, brothers of the bride, and Walter Fagan, Jr., 1322 Pond street, a cousin of the bride.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in white satin fashioned redingote style. The high neckline featured a military collar and a strand of pearls was worn. The sleeves were long, and the skirt was cut with a train. The bridal veil of tulle had a coronet of lace, and she wore white satin slippers and carried white roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

The maid of honor was attractive in a pink silk net gown over pink satin, cut square at the neck and featuring short puffed sleeves and a full skirt. The model was trimmed with blue. A pink tulle off-the-face hat with shoulder length veil, long lace mitts of the same tone, blue satin slippers, completed her outfit, and she carried a bouquet of dark blue corn flowers. The bridesmaids wore models fashioned with square cut necklines, short puffed sleeves, and long gored skirts. Miss Wallower was attired in a peach print taffeta on white, and Miss Wilhelm wore violet print on white.

Their hats were of green tulle off-the-face models with shoulder length veils. Long green lace mitts and white slippers were worn. Each attendant carried bouquets of peach tone gladioli and delphinium.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. W. H. Studenmund, 115 East Coulter street, Germantown.

The bride's mother was attired in a light blue lace gown made redingote style, accessories to match, and wore a corsage of talisman roses. Mr. and Mrs. Connor left Saturday evening by motor for Mercersburg. From there they will take a motor trip through the South. Mrs. Connor travelled in a light blue taffeta suit with dark blue accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Connor will reside in Flemington, N. J., and will be at home after September 1st. The bride, who is a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fagan, 1322 Pond street, has been a member of the teaching staff of the Bristol public schools. She is a graduate of Shippensburg Teachers College and a member of the Junior Travel Club.

Mr. Connor is a graduate of Shippensburg Teachers College, received his master's degree from Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N. J., and is a teacher in the Flemington, N. J., schools.

The First Baptist Church was the scene of a wedding Saturday at three p. m., when Miss Clara L. Follin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Follin, 578 Swain street, became the bride of Arthur Barclay, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Barclay, Newportville. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Howard Zepp, pastor. Miss Winifred Tracy played Lohengrin's Wedding March as the bridal party entered the edifice; and Miss Mildred Dyer, Washington street, sang "I Love You Truly."

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Charles Follin, wore white silk net over white silk. The sleeveless gown was made on form-fitting lines, with a long skirt. With this was worn a jacket with short puffed sleeves. A tulle veil edged with lace, made turban effect, with pearls and orange blossoms; white kid slippers and long white kid gloves completed her costume; and she carried a bouquet of white roses and valley lilies.

The bridesmaid, Miss Agnes Barclay, Newportville, sister of the groom, was attractive in a gown of aqua-mauve-selene-de-soi, fashioned on close-fitting lines, short puffed sleeves and the long skirt cut with a slight train. Slippers were white and her gloves were the tone of her gown. She wore a garland of white rose-buds in her hair, and carried a bouquet of Spring flowers.

Serving as best man was the Rev. Gordon McLean, pastor of the Newportville Church. The ushers were Raymond Perpete and Alvin Marshall, Jr., Newportville.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, and a dinner was served to the bridal party, immediate families and a few friends. Mr. and Mrs. Barclay left Saturday evening for Atlantic City, N. J., where they spent the week-end. The bride wore as a traveling costume a maroon taffeta two-piece suit with a small white felt hat with veil, and white accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Barclay will reside at the home of the groom in Newportville, awaiting completion of their newly-built home.

At St. Mark's rectory, Radcliffe street, a wedding occurred, Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, when Miss Ann C. Kennedy, 221 Lafayette street, became the bride of Thomas W. Stake, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norris Stake.

Tullytown. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Paul E. Baird, in the presence of a number of relatives and friends.

Miss Theresa Dennen, 257 Jackson street, was bridesmaid, and Henry Clay, Tullytown, served as best man. The bride wore white lace over taffeta, redingote style, with short puffed sleeves. She wore white satin slippers, a garland of flowers in her hair, long white lace mitts, and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and baby breath.

Miss Dennen was attractive in a gown of peach chiffon over satin of the same shade, made on long close-fitting lines. She wore a short jacket of self material fashioned with a shirred yoke, high neckline and short sleeves. Her slippers and mitts were aqua tone, and the garland of flowers on her hair blended with her dress. She carried a bouquet of talisman roses and baby breath.

A reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Flanagan, 221 Lafayette street, brother-in-law and sister of the bride, the immediate families attending.

Mr. and Mrs. Stake left Saturday evening for Atlantic City, N. J., where they are spending their honeymoon. They will reside at the bride's home, 221 Lafayette street.
